Educator Elizabeth Woodrum's first foray into writing children's books is a fun mystery with an imaginative and assertive fourth-grade girl.

I don't know if adorable even begins to describe Maisy. She is just your average fourth grade detective - oh wait, I wish those were real. Kids like Maisy would.

I hope Elizabeth Woodrum continues to add books to this collection at a swift pace. Elizabeth Woodrum is a full time elementary teacher.

The quality of the writing and the choice of vocabulary would make this a great read. However I'm going to see if I can find a print copy of it to add to my library collection. And her fee? Check it out! When some mice, which serve as the school mascots, go missing, everyone just knows that Maisy will take the case.
